Key Market Highlights

- Card-based wallets (e.g., Apple Pay) are the primary growth engines in European e-commerce today, steadily capturing consumers' share of wallet from traditional card rails as well as proprietary wallets (e.g., PayPal), driven by superior mobile-first frictionless checkout experiences.
- Local A2A payment schemes built on bank rails continue to grow rapidly in Europe, although momentum remains uneven across European markets. Solutions such as BLIK and Bizum show strong, sustained traction in their home markets, while others (e.g., Swish in Sweden) have experienced more mixed outcomes as competition has intensified.
- BNPL solutions (e.g., Klarna) also continue to demonstrate robust growth despite tightening regulatory frameworks in Europe, supported by ongoing merchant adoption and increasing demand for flexible payment options among European consumers.
